His Grace, the Bishop of London, on Wednesday, and went direct on to London; he will be immediately employed again, and it is said, he will be in London in a few days.

The Government are proceeding very cautiously in the matter of the proposed new railway, and it is said, "we await information." In this case, the Government's caution is a very reasonable one, as the proposed line is a very important one, and the Government are well justified in their caution.

There is something almost surprising in the new formation of the Liberal party in Parliament, to hear Sir C. Dilke and Mr. Chamberlain speak in words of praise.

The Lord Mayor of London has just given notice of the annual dinner of the City of London, to be given on the 10th inst. at 5 p.m. The dinner will be given at the Mansion House, and will be a very important one.

The House of Commons has just passed a Bill for the relief of the Poor Law Commission, which will be a very important one.

The House of Lords has just passed a Bill for the relief of the Poor Law Commission, which will be a very important one.

EXTRAORDINARY MOUNTAIN ASCENTS.

The following letter from Mr. E. Whymper, who is at present in Ecuador with the guides, Carel, or Vallumbancho, will interest many readers, especially as it shows that, contrary to the opinion entertained by some authorities, it is quite possible to become sufficiently acclimated in a comparatively short time to the rarefaction of the air at heights of 15,000 ft. to 20,000 ft. to climb active volcanoes without inconvenience.

"I have succeeded in reaching the summit of Chimborazo, 20,561 ft. high, and I have been able to do so without any special preparation, and I have been able to do so without any special preparation, and I have been able to do so without any special preparation."
